

No BLAME, No SHAME!

INTERSECTIONAL ANTI-OPPRESSION 101

Saturday, October 14th, 2017

10:30am - 5:30pm

Lib 7200, SFU Burnaby

Take part in a day of facilitated discussion and practical skills building to gain a better understanding of oppression and ways to stand up for yourself and others when you see it playing out in daily life. This workshop will take a “no blame, no shame” approach to the issues. People of all levels of familiarity with anti-oppression work are welcome.

Explore questions like:

- What is oppression?
- What forms of oppression exist?
- Is there such a thing as “reverse oppression”?
- What do terms like intersectionality and privilege mean?
- Where do I fit into all of this?
- How can I work for change?

Register online at www.SFPIRG.ca

ASL is being booked for this event.
Please register by Sept 28th at 9am to request ASL interpretation.

The Simon Fraser Public Interest Research Group (SFPIRG) is a student-funded & student-led centre for social & environmental justice on campus. Childcare, transportation & accessibility subsidies are available for all our events. Contact us for info: admin@sfpirg.ca or (778) 782-5339.

www.SFPIRG.ca